ن nūn, the twenty-fifth letter of the Arabic alphabet, the twenty-ninth of the Persian, and the thirty-second Hindustānī; it is one of the dental letters, and has the sound of the English n, with the following exceptions the letter nūn has a very soft nasal sound in all plural terminations in āṅ, eṅ, īṅ, and oṅ, and in all terminations in ūṅ and eṅ of the aorist and imperative of verbs, it has also this nasal sound in the middle of some words, as muṅh, the face, haṅsnā, to smile, &c., for which no rule can be laid down; in this dictionary the nasal sound of n is always indicated by ṅ; when nūn precedes be or pe it has the sound of m, as mimbar, a pulpit (for minbar), sampat, prosperity (for sanpat, as is the case in Greek and Latin). In reckoning by abjad, the letter nūn stands for 50; in almanacks it expresses the conjunct aspect of the stars, finally, the letter nūn with the short a (as na) prefixed to verbs renders the sense negative, as bolā, he spoke, na-bolā, he did not speak.

و

و wāw, the twenty-sixth letter of the Arabic alphabet, the thirtieth Persian, and the thirty-third Hindūstānī. At the beginning of a word or syllable it generally corresponds in sound to our w, but in words purely Sanskrit, it has the sound of our v. Again, the Sanskrit v is frequently changed into b in the modern Hindūstānī and Bengalī; hence a Hindī word not found under this letter should be looked for under b. In reckoning by abjad it stands for six. In ephemerides it represents Friday and the sign Libra. Wāw not beginning a word or syllable contributes to form the long vocal sounds o, ū, and au, fully explained in my Persian and Hindūstānī Grammars.

و wa, a copulative conjunction equivalent to our "and, with, but, now;" it is used in connecting words and phrases from the Arabic and Persian. When it merely connects two words, it is sounded o, as shab o roz, night and day. a. p.

A DICTIONARY,

ENGLISH AND HINDUSTANI.

A or An, the indefinite article, is expressed in Hindustani sometimes by the numeral "ek," one, or the indefinite pronoun, "ko,ī," a certain one, as "ek mard," or "koī mard," a man, or a certain man. A, before verbal nouns, in such phrases as a-visiting, a-hunting, is expressed by the postposition "ko," as "wuh mulākāt ko gayā," he is gone a-visiting, "shikār ko gayā," is gone a-hunting, and frequently the "ko," is omitted after the Hindustani infinitive, which last, however, remains in the inflected state, as "wuh paine gayā," he is gone a-swimming. The meaning of a in the sense of by or per, as by the yard, per mouth, &c. is expressed variously, thus, five rupees a yard, "fī gaz pānch rupae," or "sare gaz pānch rupae," or "gaz bhar pānch rupae," you shall receive a rupee a day, "tum ko roz roz ek rupīya milegā." If the prefixed a denote in or on, it will be expressed by "meṅ," or "par," as "jahāz par," on board ship, or aboard.

HINDUSTANI MANUAL;

A Pocket Companion for those who visit India in any capacity; intended to facil... the essential attainments of conversing with fluency, and composing with accuracy, in the most useful of all the languages spoken in our Eastern Empire.

IN TWO PARTS.

PART I.—A Compendious Grammar, and Exercises on its more prominent Peculiarities; with a Selection of useful Phrases, and Dialogues on familiar Subjects.

PART II.—A Vocabulary of useful Words, English and Hindustani; shewing at the same time the difference of Idiom between the two Languages.

Extracted from the "Friend of India," published at Serampore.

"We are favoured with a copy of the 'Hindustani Manual,' published by Dr. FORBES, the Professor of Oriental Languages and Literature in King's College, London. It is a small duodecimo volume of 150 pages, within which narrow space more instruction is condensed than is to be found in works of four times its size and cost. The first thirty pages, which comprise the first and second sections, contain a brief but very accurate view of the essential principles of the language. The great recommendation of this Epitome of Grammar is, that it furnishes all the elementary information which it is necessary for the Student to acquire. He may purchase a larger and more expensive work, without finding those studies facilitated. If a great book is ordinarily a great evil, a great Grammar is a still greater evil, and the man deserves no small credit and gratitude who succeeds in abridging that dullest period of study which is devoted to grammatical refinements. The third section contains a copious List of Useful Phrases; and the fourth, a series of Dialogues, or rather sentences, regarding the ordinary business of life.

"We have then a Military Vocabulary, and a course of Military Phrases; and in the last fifty pages, a Practical and Phraseological Vocabulary.

"The Work can be honestly recommended to all who are desirous of acquiring the elements of the language, or of making themselves understood among the people of this country. We have seldom, if ever, seen such a small pocket companion with such a variety of useful instruction. The language of the Vocabulary and of the Dialogues appears quite unexceptionable. Any one acquainted with Hindustani will at once recognize its idiomatic accuracy, and cheerfully recommend it to the notice of all those who desire to come out to India not altogether unprepared to convey their own wishes to those who surround them."
